FATHER RECOVERS KIDNAPED CHILD

Visits in Ysleta—The Gourleys Recover—Valley Inn Events.

Ysleta, Tex., June 15.—W. H. Lee, who stopped here on his way to San Antonio, was accompanied by his little daughter Gladys, who was kidnapped from his apartment at the Savoy hotel, Douglas, Ariz., on March 3, and taken into Mexico. She was recovered by Mr. Lee's detective but a few days ago. The child, who is only 2 years old, was evidently in good hands during her absence, for she showed every sign of having been well cared for. Her mother died a short time before the kidnapping.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Gourley have recovered from their attack of smallpox and are out again.

M. Schurz, who underwent an operation at Hotel Diego, in El Paso, continues to improve.

Mrs. W. E. Downing and son Edward, after a visit with Mrs. A. L. Peterman, have returned to El Paso. Mrs. Downing, who is a sister of county engineer J. W. Edmunk, lived here 12 years ago. She says the valley has fulfilled what was predicted for it.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Payne and daughter have moved into their elegant new home.

E. H. Carrington of El Paso, general freight agent of the Texas & Pacific, is at Valley Inn for a few days' rest. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Turney, of El Paso, gave an informal but very delightful dinner at Valley Inn Tuesday evening for Mrs. U. S. Stewart, Miss Virginia Stewart and Winchester Cooley.

STATEHOOD MAY HAVE A HARD ROW

Does Not Look as If the Bill Would Have a Very Favorable Chance.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—Statehood does not appear to have clear sailing.

The great difficulty in the way of statehood lies in the radical differences between the house and senate bills. It is asserted as practically certain that the senate will accept only the bill which originated in that body, known as the Beveridge bill. There is also a practical certainty that the house would not accept the senate bill.

Representative Hamilton, the author of the house bill, says unqualifiedly that so far as he is concerned, it would not.

The Hamilton bill passed the house almost without opposition, and it is generally conceded that Hamilton's opinion in statehood matters would carry much weight in that body.

He lately has had many conferences with President Taft and he is convinced that Taft prefers the house bill. It is said the president would like to see the house bill adopted by the senate with two material amendments.

URGE REMOVAL OF THE SOUTHSIDE STOCK PENS

Mass Meeting of Citizens Draws Up a Protest for the City Council.

The mass meeting of the citizens of the south side called for Tuesday evening, was the largest in numbers of the several held "in opposition to disease breeding plants remaining in that section." Many prominent people were in the large audience and on the stage, and several speeches were made, showing the intense interest felt in the matter of sanitation and the desire for the advancement of that part of the city of El Paso.

The officers appointed were Luis E. Alvarez, chairman, and B. S. Rodriguez, secretary.

The committee on resolutions was composed of M. G. Braswell, S. Salazar, J. A. Samaniego, M. D. J. A. Escalada, D. Montoya, T. M. Platas, J. G. Salazar, L. J. Herrera, M. Escalada, Pablo Rivera, Isidro Martinez and Jose Rindom.

After the resolutions were presented a motion was carried that a committee, consisting of the above, with the citizens' committee added, attend the meeting of the council at which the resolutions come before that body.

Dr. J. A. Samaniego pictured the actual sanitary conditions now existing on the south side of the city, and asked what was the cause of the extraordinary death rate and how it compared with the death rate of the citizens of the north side. He said that it was easier to prevent disease than it was to cure it. The number of deaths among the Mexican people caused by tuberculosis was alarming, he said, and he was sure that the poor sanitary conditions on the south side were due to the many disease breeding establishments.

L. M. Platas said that the south side must insist on securing the aid of the city council in order to have it cleared of these objectionable concerns. The American people, he was sure, were not aware of the serious sanitary conditions existing and he believed that these conditions would soon affect them by the daily contact with those living on the south side.

J. A. Escalada said that the citizens who resided on the north side had no conception, in a general way, of the deplorable conditions that exist on the south side, and he hoped that they would take notice. He also claimed that the south side was being made a dumping ground for all the trash and refuse from the north side.

J. G. Salazar, Tenreiro, L. J. Herrera and B. S. Rodriguez made addresses.

Attorney Lafuente spoke of the individual rights which the laws in the different countries accord citizens. In his opinion the welfare of the public in general was far more important than the interests of any particular concerns or parties.

Strong Resolutions.

The committee on resolutions reported the following appeal to the city council, which was adopted:

Whereas, Several petitions and protests made by the citizens and residents of the south side to the city council, with the moral support of almost the entire community of the city of El Paso behind us at present in opposition to stock yards and all other disease breeding establishments remaining within the city limits; and

Whereas, It is alleged that it is the intention of these obnoxious interests to "slip in" under the guise that if properly kept in a clean and sanitary condition they can remain," which is simply, in our opinion, as well as nine-tenths of old others a subterfuge to secure positive location and also "vested rights," and so make their removal almost impossible, while the citizens suffer; and

Whereas, It is known to us and thousands of others that the utter impossibility to keep such plants in even a half-way clean condition, let alone perfect sanitation, as the droppings continually each day and night from 1000 or more cattle, is and would continue to be horrible in their stench and disease breeding action, and would take the combined efforts of a battalion of daily cleaners, that would be impossible to remove such filthy and unhealthy deposits, and even if a sanitary physician would pronounce them clean; and

Whereas, The almost daily wanton display of dead animals being carried on trains through the streets right in the populous south side resident parts, and thence dropped out of the trains onto the streets and there remain until it is fit for their removal, is an evil that no people can legally be made to stand for; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this petition and protest made by the people to your honorable body, is advocated and desired in the maintenance of health and life to ourselves, our families and citizens generally. We also respectfully ask the council to deal with this matter without any temporizing or delay, but to issue an ordinance at once, allowing a stated time of 60, or even 90 days, for their removal outside of the city limits, and thus recognize our efforts for relief, and afford us an opportunity to meet the efforts of the people and council in beautifying the entire city by having the south side help and participate in the general advancement. With stock yards and all other disease breeding plants in our midst this can never be accomplished, much as may all wish for its fulfillment. It is now, and ever will be, an issue between the people's health and all disease breeding plants within the city limits.

England. He will return this fall accompanied by his wife.

The B. A. Y. lodge held its regular meeting at the Fair hall Tuesday night. After the session, Mrs. Elmer Hall entertained the members and their friends with a dance.

Dr. Massey has gone to La Cananea to live.

Notwithstanding the relief afforded by the rain 15 days ago, cattle are again suffering.

Mrs. Geo. Meyer was taken to the hospital, being seriously ill. Her husband is the master mechanic of the Copper Queen.

Roe Mattingly, a licensed pharmacist, has arrived from Tucuman, N. M., to take a position with the Lowell Drug company.

Railroads Retrenching.

St. Paul, Minn., June 15.—The Pioneer Press says that the policy of retrenchment threatened by the railroads because of federal activity in preventing an increase in freight rates, is being put into force. So far it has meant the laying off of about 10,000 laborers in the northwest. Orders have been received from headquarters to stop practically all new construction.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Howard Jeffries marries waitress while at college and is disinherited by rich father. Stepmother visits apartments of her old flame, Robert Underwood, to try to prevent him ending his life when pressed by creditors. Howard, visiting Underwood, a former college mate, seeking a loan, is asleep in the apartments during the interview and as stepmother leaves, Underwood shoots himself. Howard awakens and is arrested and, by police third degree methods, is made to confess to the crime. His wife seeks aid of his family. Goes to see husband at prison. He tells her he is not guilty.

It was a glad home-coming to the little flat in Harlem. To Howard, after spending so long a time in the narrow prison quarters, it seemed like paradise, and Annie walked on air, so delighted was she to have him with her again. Yet there were still anxieties to cloud their happiness. The close confinement, with its attendant worry, had seriously undermined Howard's health. He was pale and attenuated, and so weak that he had several fainting spells. Much alarmed, Annie summoned Dr. Bernstein, who administered a tonic. There was nothing to cause anxiety, he said, reassuringly. It was a natural reaction after what her husband had undergone. But it was worry as much as anything else. Howard worried about his father, with whom he was only partially reconciled; he worried about his future, which was as precarious as ever, and most of all he worried about his wife. He was not ignorant of the circumstances which had brought about his release, and while liberty was sweet to him, it had been a terrible shock when he first heard that she was the woman who had visited Underwood's rooms. He refused to believe her sworn evidence. How was it possible? Why should she go to Underwood's rooms knowing he was there? It was preposterous. Still the small voice rang in his ears—perhaps she's untrue! It haunted him till one day he asked point-blank for an explanation. Then she told that she had perjured herself. She was not the woman. Who she really was she could not say. He must be satisfied for the present with the assurance that it was not his wife. With that he was content. What did he care for the opinion of others? He knew—that was enough! In their conversation on the subject Annie did not even mention Alicia's name. Why should she?

Weeks passed, and Howard's health did not improve. He had tried to find a position, but without success, yet every day brought its obligations which had to be met. One morning Annie was bustling about their tiny dining room preparing the table for their frugal luncheon. She had just placed the rolls and butter on the table, and arranged the chairs, when there came a ring at the front doorbell. Early visitors were not so infrequent as to cause surprise, so, without waiting to remove her apron, she went to the door and opened it. Dr. Bernstein entered.

"Good morning, Mrs. Jeffries," he said, cheerfully. Putting down his medical bag, he asked: "How is our patient this morning?"

"All right, doctor. He had a splendid night's rest. I'll call him."

"Never mind, I want to talk to you." Seriously, he went on: "Mrs. Jeffries, your husband needs a change of scene. He's worrying. That fainting spell the other day was only a symptom. I'm afraid he'll break down unless—"

"Unless what?" she demanded, anxiously.

He hesitated for a moment, as if unwilling to give utterance to words he knew must inflict pain. Then he quickly continued:

"Your husband is under a great mental strain. His inability to support you, his banishment from his proper sphere in the social world is mental torture to him. He feels his position keenly. There is nothing else to occupy his mind but thoughts of his utter and complete failure in life."

I was talking to his father last night, and—

"And what?" she demanded, drawing herself up. She suspected what was coming, and nerved herself to meet it.

"Now, don't regard me as an enemy," said the doctor in a conciliatory tone. "Mr. Jeffries inquired after his son. Believe me, he's very anxious. He knows he did the boy a great injustice, and he wants to make up for it."

"Oh, he does?" she exclaimed, sarcastically.

Dr. Bernstein hesitated for a moment before replying. Then he said, lightly: "Suppose Howard goes abroad for a few months with his father and mother?"

"Is that the proposition?" she demanded.

The doctor nodded.

"I believe Mr. Jeffries has already spoken about it to his son," he said.

Annie choked back a sob and, crossing the room to conceal her emotion, stood with her back turned, looking out of the window. Her voice was trembling as she said:

Pabst Extract

The Best Tonic

a liquid predigested food, has no equal during convalescence. Combining in proper proportions the nutritive and digestive qualities of rich barley malt with the rare tonic properties of the lupulin from choicest hops, it furnishes those elements absolutely necessary for a rapid return to your former self. It creates a desire for wholesome food and furnishes the power for its digestion.

The United States Government specifically classifies Pabst Extract as an article of medicine—not an alcoholic beverage.

Order a dozen bottles from your local druggist. Insist upon it being Pabst.
